

Till All That's Left is Love

I've been more and more uncertain
In the madness of each day
In this avalanche of hurting
That's sweeping me away

The world feels like it's crumbling
While we just watch it break
Hoping someone will do something
Before it is too late

Can we take off all the armor
Can we lay down all the fear
Can we start to start over
And move forward from here
Can we strip away the anger
The darkness and distrust
Can we peel back all the layers
Till all that's left is love

There's an innocence that's over
Bearing witness to the night
And I feel myself grow older
With each and every fight

But if there's peace off in the distance
And hope still lives somewhere
After centuries of resistance
Maybe I can meet you there

Can we take off all the armor
Can we lay down all the fear
Can we start to start over
And move forward from here
Can we strip away the anger
The darkness and distrust
Can we peel back all the layers
Till all that's left is love...

In the kindness of a stranger
In an open-hearted friend
In the way I keep believing
That I'll believe again...

We can take off all the armor
We can lay down all the fear
We can start to start over
And move forward from here
We can strip away the anger
The darkness and distrust
We can peel back all the layers
Till all that's left is love
Till all that's left is love